

Changed Lives Ministries Newsletter Whoa! 2010!

Angel Tree

As I write this I think, "How can it be?"; we're almost through March and coming up on Easter! It seems like just last week I was delivering Angel Tree gifts! 2010 is flying by and it's amazing how the Lord is using the ministry of Changed Lives in the prisons, juvenile centers, churches, youth groups, Bible study groups, ministry banquets, schools...well you name it... I've been there! I have been traveling continuously since the first of the year from the East Coast to the West (plus numerous points in between) meeting people, sharing the Gospel and seeing lives changed as a result! I've never experienced so many people from all walks of life, from all areas of the country, from all age groups responding to the Gospel; professing their need for Christ! God is so good! Amazing love! I've also noted a strong desire among church members to have God move in their lives in such a way they get excited again about their salvation. Many times, while preaching at various churches, across the country I would be asked to stay "an extra day or two" sharing how God is working in my life and His desire (I'm convinced of this!) for His people to get off of the sidelines and into the action! I've witnessed first hand a tremendous response to this appeal! While I was preaching in PA recently a lady asked me so sincerely how she could get her kids excited about the Lord. Maybe you've asked that question too?! The answer is we need to get excited ourselves and that will have a contagious effect on those around us! Just two nights ago I witnessed six ladies raise their hands professing their need for Christ at Trumbull Correctional; doesn't that get you excited?! These are exciting times for God's people! The Lord is doing great things! Thank you for being a part of this ministry! I couldn't do it without your prayers and support! Amen!

Anna and Hannah help me make a point.

They'll listen if you have something to say!

It's a blessing to share Jesus and it's a special blessing to be asked by so many Christian schools to come and share with the students! I so love this part of the ministry! Imagine speaking to a group of young people ages 6 thru 15 and trying to keep everyone's attention! God allows me to do that and more! These students are not only attentive, they are involved!
